If it's just a 10-page document, no problem, but if it's 250-pages, you will need to punch 3 holes in all those pages and put it in a 3-ring binder. Takes at least an hour. It's much more cost-effective to just order the latest version from Amazon.com This book includes original commentary which is copyright material. Note that government documents are in the public domain. We print these large documents as a service so you don't have to. Force Multiplying Technologies for Logistics Support to Military Operations Jun 25 2020 The mission of the United States Army is to fight and win our nation's wars by providing prompt, sustained land dominance across the full range of military operations and spectrum of conflict in support of combatant commanders. Accomplishing this mission rests on the ability of the Army to equip and move its forces to the battle and sustain them while they are engaged. Logistics provides the backbone for Army combat operations. Without fuel, ammunition, rations, and other supplies, the Army would grind to a halt. The U.S. military must be prepared to fight anywhere on the globe and, in an era of coalition warfare, to logistically support its allies. While aircraft can move large amounts of supplies, the vast majority must be carried on ocean going vessels and unloaded at ports that may be at a great distance from the battlefield. As the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq have shown, the costs of convoying vast quantities of supplies is tallied not only in economic terms but also in terms of lives lost in the movement of the materiel. As the ability of potential enemies to interdict movement to the battlefield and interdict movements in the battlespace increases, the challenge of logistics grows even larger. No matter how the nature of battle develops, logistics will remain a key factor. Force Multiplying Technologies for Logistics Support to Military Operations explores Army logistics in a global, complex environment that includes the increasing use of antiaccess and area-denial tactics and technologies by potential adversaries. This report describes new technologies and systems that would reduce the demand for logistics and meet the demand at the point of need, make maintenance more efficient, improve inter- and intratheater mobility, and improve near-real-time, in-transit visibility. Force Multiplying Technologies also explores options for the Army to operate with the other services and improve its support of Special Operations Forces. This report provides a logistics-centric research and development investment strategy and illustrative examples of how improved logistics could look in the future.

Assessment of Alternative Funding Models for Activities in RDECOM (Now CCDC) and ATEC Apr 04 2021 In 2016, the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) (OUSD[C]) asked the military departments to minimize reimbursable civilian personnel costs to increase the transparency of accounting practices and improve auditability. The OUSD(C) guidance focuses on minimizing reimbursables because they make transactions between organizations less transparent and harder to trace. Along with financial and accounting considerations, the authors' assessment considered how the current reimbursement models and several alternative funding models at two Army commands-the U.S. Army Research, Development, and Engineering Command (RDECOM, renamed the Combat Capabilities Development Command [CCDC] in February 2019) and the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command (ATEC)-impact those commands, their customers, and the Army. The authors have the following recommendations: that RDECOM and ATEC continue to operate within their current reimbursement models and that the commands pursue improvements to their current funding models that would allow them to address stakeholder financial and accounting concerns without the drawbacks and risks of alternative funding models. This report should be of most interest to organizations in the Department of Defense that have been asked to minimize reimbursable civilian personnel costs. In addition, the report will be of general interest to government organizations seeking a better understanding of internal transfer pricing, including examples of how transfer pricing is used and the strengths and weaknesses of different mechanisms.

Field Manual FM 1-06 Financial Management Operations April 2014 Apr 28 2023 This manual, Field Manual FM 1-06 Financial Management Operations April 2014, replaces the core functions of resource management (RM) and finance operations (FO) as terms. Financial Management integrates these core functions under one term. Army Financial Management is comprehensive in scope, from developing and analyzing funding requirements, distributing available funds, executing and maintaining controls and auditable records, and producing internal management and external accounting reports. This involves establishing a responsive and realistic requirements process, and inculcating a cost culture that incentivizes good stewardship. The key system enabler for accomplishing Army FM is the General Fund Enterprise Business System (GFEBS). GFEBS is the Army's integrated financial management system for funds distribution, execution and reporting. The system provides real-time visibility of transactions as well as historical data to enable better analyses and to make better informed decisions. GFEBS complies with statutory and regulatory requirements, enforces internal controls and is the Army's centerpiece for achieving unqualified financial audit opinions. GFEBS is an Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system, and like all ERPs, results in the integration of related data, as well as changes to business processes. The FM mission includes support to stability operations such as providing FM support to host nation banking institutions, developing economic assessments for a theater of operations, and coordinating with unified action partners to implement the United States instrument of economic power. Unified action partners are those military forces, governmental and nongovernmental organizations, and elements of the private sector with whom Army forces plan, coordinate, synchronize, and integrate during the conduct of operations. Field manual 1-06 makes numerous changes from the first version and now contains eight chapters, in which the financial management core competencies are described to reflect the broad reach of FM operations throughout the Army. These five core competencies are Fund the Force, Banking and Disbursing, Accounting Support and Cost Management, Pay Support and Management Internal Controls. Chapter 1 discusses financial management mission, principles, and its core competencies. It describes the tactical, operational, and strategic level support and the organization responsibilities and relationships with unified action partners. The chapter articulates the different financial management staff elements and the organization structure including SRC-14 details. Chapter 2 provides an overview of core competency; fund the force. Appropriations and authorization process is described to include the different applicable legislative key terms, statues and laws. Chapter 3 discusses the core competency banking and disbursing. A description of all aspects of banking support and disbursing support, to include the close relationship between the two is explained in the various sections of the chapter. Chapter 4 provides information about pay support as a core competency in relation to both active duty and reserve component pay. Chapter 5 contains information on accounting support and cost management as core competencies. It describes the stages of transactions at the strategic, operational, and tactical levels of accounting support. It also describes the cost management process and its importance during every operation. Chapter 6 covers the operational art and planning and all aspects of the military decision making process in concern to financial management operations. Chapter 7 describes the management internal controls as a core competency and the responsibilities inherited during financial management operations. Chapter 8 discusses the information management aspects of financial management operations. It gives a description of the different automation systems in support of the mission.

21st Century U.S. Military Manuals Mar 27 2023 FM 1-06 is the Army's keystone manual for Financial Management (FM). Its purpose is to provide the authoritative doctrine on how FM supports the full spectrum of operations as a component of the theater sustainment warfighting function. The intent of this manual is to describe how FM complements combat power, supports strategic and operational reach, and enables endurance. This manual provides the foundation of FM doctrine, organizations, training, materiel, leadership and education, personnel, and facilities development to support the modular Army, and establishes how FM operations are integrated and synchronized into the overall operations process - plan, prepare, execute and assess.
